CHANGES IN PER DIEM TRAVEL ALLOWANCES FOR GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

FEBRUARY 6, 1975.—Committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union and ordered to be printed

Mr. BROOKS, from the Committee on Government Operations, submitted the following

REPORT

[To accompany H.R. 2302]

The Committee on Government Operations, to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 2302) to revise certain provisions relating to per diem and mileage expenses of Government employees and disabled veterans, and for other purposes, having considered the same, report favorably thereon with amendments and recommend that the bill as amended do pass.

The amendments are as follows:

On page 9, strike out lines 13 through 21.

Amend the title so as to read:

A bill to revise certain provisions relating to per diem and mileage expenses of Government employees, and for other purposes.

EXPLANATION OF THE AMENDMENTS

The first amendment deletes section 10 from the bill which would have extended the per diem and mileage rates established in the bill to disabled veterans with a service-connected disability traveling to and from a VA facility.

The second amendment deletes reference to "disabled veterans" in the title of the bill.

The 93d Congress unanimously enacted legislation (S. 3341) just prior to adjournment to increase per diem and mileage allowances for both Government employees traveling on public business and for disabled veterans with a service-connected disability traveling to and from veterans facilities. The new rates were designed to provide for adequate reimbursement for out-of-pocket expenses.

President Ford vetoed this legislation, not on the basis of the rates established for Government employees, but on the ground that it would be too costly to extend the same rates to disabled veterans with a service-connected disability traveling to and from veterans facilities.

The President alleged in his veto message that extending the increased benefits to the disabled veterans would cost an additional $25 million a year. Since the message, several attempts have been made to have the Veterans' Administration justify that amount. To date, they have been unable to do so to this committee.

Even if such figure were supportable, however, it was believed equitable to include disabled veterans within the legislation. Representatives of the Veterans' Affairs Committee indicated they would not object to this provision.

Subsequently, however, the Office of Management and Budget indicated to the Veterans' Affairs Committee that, if the bill were passed, containing the disabled veterans' provision, the increased costs would have to be absorbed with the 1976 budget of the Veterans' Administration. This could result in a reduction of direct health care benefits to veterans.

In the face of this threat by OMB, the Honorable Ray Roberts, chairman of the Veterans' Affairs Committee, has indicated that his committee should have the opportunity to fully consider the impact of the provision. In a letter to Chairman Brooks, he indicated that he intends to introduce legislation to provide for an annual study of travel costs by the VA, taking into consideration the same factors that the General Services Administration will consider under H.R. 2302. A copy of this letter follows:

U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
COMMITTEE ON VETERANS' AFFAIRS,
Washington, D.C., February 3, 1975.

Hon. JACK BROOKS,
Chairman, Subcommittee on Government Activities, Committee on Government Operations, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: This has reference to our recent conservation regarding Section 10 of H. R. 6, 94th Congress, now before your Committee which would amend Title 38, United States Code by adding to Section 111(a) the following:

"In no event shall the amount paid for expenses of travel or mileage allowance under this section in the case of any veteran with a service-connected disability be less than the amount paid therefore under section 5702 or 5704, as appropriate, of title 5 in the case of employees of the United States traveling on official business."

"(b) The Amendment made by subsection (a) of this section shall become effective July 1, 1975."

Legislation similar to H. R. 6 was passed by the 93rd Congress but vetoed by the President because of the above provision relating to Title 38.

Members of our respective staffs have discussed the Title 38 provision since the veto and initially it was decided that since basic eligibility requirements were not being changed, that we would interpose no jurisdictional objection.

More recent developments, however, have caused us to reevaluate this situation inasmuch as we understand that it is the intent of OMB and considerable sentiment in the Senate to have the agencies and departments "absorb" the increased cost of this legislation within the 1976 budget if the legislation is finally enacted.

If this is the case, and there are strong indicators from a number of sources that this is the case, approximately $18.7 million in increased cost would come out of the Veterans Administration Medical Care budget for beneficiary travel. The medical care appropriation is already grossly inadequate for direct patient care in VA hospitals and outpatient clinics, and any further erosion of this funding would cause additional serious problems.

In the meantime we have drafted and will introduce the enclosed bill which would require the Veterans Administration to annually investigate the cost of travel by veterans to VA facilities and to set the rates therefore.

Our Committee has been instrumental in forcing the VA to increase beneficiary travel rates in recent months from 6¢ to 8¢ per mile in an effort to more equitably reimburse veterans for their actual out of pocket travel costs for authorized examinations and treatments and the like, and we believe the enclosed draft bill will meet the veterans beneficiary travel needs. In view of the questions raised, I feel the Committee on Veterans' Affairs should retain jurisdiction of this issue.

With best wishes, I am,
Sincerely yours,

RAY ROBERTS,
Chairman.

[NOTE.—This draft legislation was introduced as H.R. 2735 on Feb. 4, 1975.]

[H.R. —, 94th Cong., 1st sess.]

A BILL To amend title 38 of the United States Code in order to provide for an annual investigation by the Administrator into the cost of travel by veterans to Veterans' Administration facilities and to set rates therefor, and other purposes

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section 111 of title 38, United States Code, is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(c) In carrying out the purposes of this section, the Administrator shall conduct annual investigations of the cost of travel (including lodging and subsistence) and the operation of privately owned vehicles to beneficiaries while traveling to or from a Veterans' Administration facility or other place pursuant to the provisions of this section. In conducting the investigations, the Administrator shall review and analyze among other factors—

- “(1) depreciation of original vehicle cost;
 - “(2) gasoline and oil costs;
 - “(3) maintenance, accessories, parts, and tires;
 - “(4) insurance;
 - “(5) State and Federal taxes; and
 - “(6) the per diem rates, mileage allowances, and expenses of travel authorized under sections 5702 and 5704 of title 5, for employees of the United States traveling on official business;
- and he shall report the results of such investigations to the Committees on Veterans' Affairs of the Senate and the House of Representatives at least once each year, setting forth the allowance rate authorized and the basis used for such determination.”.

In view of these considerations, the committee agreed to delete the disabled veterans' provision from the bill.

PURPOSE

H.R. 2302 establishes a uniform maximum per diem allowance for Federal employees while traveling on official business inside the continental limits of the United States of up to $35 per day, with a $50 maximum in special circumstances prescribed under regulations issued by the General Services Administration. This proposal places more authority in GSA to issue uniform regulations for travel allowances and removes such authority from the various heads of agencies where it now exists.

H.R. 2302 also authorizes the President, or his designee, to prescribe conditions under which a Federal employee traveling outside the continental United States may be reimbursed a maximum of $21 per day under special circumstances in addition to the locally prescribed per diem allowance.

H.R. 2302 sets a range of allowances for Federal employees use of privately owned vehicles of 8 to 11 cents a mile for motorcycles, 15 to 20 cents a mile for automobiles, and 18 to 24 cents a mile for airplanes; and provides for separate reimbursement for parking fees, toll costs, and airplane landing and tie-down fees. This bill enables GSA to have the flexibility to adjust these allowances to appropriate levels up to the maximum rates. Also, under this proposal, GSA must conduct periodic studies of the cost of travel and vehicle operation and report the results annually to Congress so that the maximum could be increased if necessary.

Finally, H.R. 2302 provides for a more efficient and reasonable method of treating those covered under this proposal. The bill expands the definition of employee to include consultants, volunteers, dollar-a-year people, experts, and others so that all will be treated equally when traveling at Government expense.

HEARING

On July 16, 1974, during the preceding Congress, the committee, through its Government Activities Subcommittee, conducted a public hearing on H.R. 15903, a bill similar to H.R. 2302.

COMMITTEE VOTE

H.R. 2302, as amended, was unanimously approved by voice vote at a meeting of the Full Committee on February 4, 1975, a quorum being present.

BACKGROUND

Recognizing that a Federal Government employee traveling on legitimate Government business should not have to subsidize the cost of his trip, Congress has historically provided for reimbursement for reasonable expenses incurred while on official business. The existing per diem rates for authorized travel within the continental United States were established in 1969 under the provisions of Public Law 91-114.

That act set a maximum of $25 per day for ordinary travel, or a maximum of $40 per day under unusual circumstances of an authorized travel assignment.

For travel outside the continental United States, the per diem allowance cannot exceed the rate established by the President or his designee, who may be the Director of the Bureau of the Budget or another officer of the Government of the United States, for the locality where the travel is performed. There is no statutory limitation on this provision. Under unusual circumstances, an employee is entitled to the maximum per diem allowance plus up to $18 for each day in a travel status outside the continental United States.

The 1969 law also established the mileage and related allowances at rates not to exceed: (1) 8 cents a mile for the use of a privately owned motorcycle; or (2) 12 cents a mile for the use of a privately owned automobile or airplane. In addition to these mileage allowances, employees or other individuals performing service for the Government may be reimbursed for: (1) parking fees; (2) ferry fares; and (3) bridge, road, and tunnel tolls.

DISCUSSION

Per diem allowances

In 1969, when the present per diem and mileage allowances were established, the rates were adequate to cover reasonable expenses that might be incurred during official government travel. However, in the last 5 years, the average cost of food and lodging has increased approximately 24 percent and these rates are now inadequate to fully reimburse an employee for his travel expenses.

In an effort to determine the effect of rising costs associated with travel, the General Services Administration initiated a study to evaluate the adequacy of present travel allowances for Federal employees. The study involved approximately 13,000 actual employee travel experiences representing 63,000 man-days of travel taken over a period of 3 months in 1973, and included 22 agencies of the executive branch. This sample reflected approximately seven-tenths of 1 percent of the total number of man-days of government travel each year.

Results showed that the present $25 per diem was inadequate for over 30 percent of the reported travel. The study also disclosed that actual subsistence expense allowances of up to $40 per day were authorized in only 3 percent of the travel reported.

Since the purpose of the per diem statutes is obviously not being served, H.R. 2302 was introduced to remedy this situation. This bill increases the maximum basic statutory per diem allowance from $25 to $35, the maximum statutory actual subsistence expenses for travel under unusual circumstances in the continental United States from $40 to $50 per day, and the permissible amount in addition to the maximum per diem allowance established for a locality outside the continental United States from $18 to $21 per day.

The actual per diem rate under the maximum amount would be established by the issuance of regulations by the Administrator of GSA for travel inside the continental United States, and by the President, or his designee, for travel outside the continental United States.

The rate would be determined on a basis of periodic studies and would be applicable to all Government agencies. It is anticipated that, at the present time, a $30 per diem rate would be established for travel inside the continental United States, but the flexibility would be provided for the rate to go to a maximum of $35 should circumstances make that necessary.

Although these increases will be adequate to cover the expenses of most travel, the allowances will not be sufficient at the present time to take care of expenses incurred in travel to major cities such as New York and San Francisco. As the study below indicates, some localities presently require nearly $50 per day for adequate lodging and three average meals, including tips and taxes. To accommodate these areas of unusually high traveling costs, H.R. 2302, incorporates a new concept providing for reimbursement of actual and necessary expenses up to $50 per day for travel to high cost areas. An area would be designated by regulation as a "high rate geographic area" when travel expenses there exceed the regular per diem rate by a significant amount. GSA has testified that a 10-percent margin would be used as a guideline. If a basic per diem rate of $30 is initially established, GSA estimates that there would be approximately 10 major city areas at the present time where travel expenses would exceed that amount by 10 percent or more and would, therefore, be designated by regulation as a "high rate geographic area." A maximum rate would be stated in the governing regulations for each major city area so designated, but in no case could the rate established exceed the $50 statutory maximum.

These major city locality rates would be reviewed at least once annually, and adjusted, as appropriate, within the proposed ceiling of $50 per day. The major city locality rates would be prescribed as maximums only; and, when actual subsistence expenses incurred in any one day are less than the maximum authorized, the traveler will be reimbursed only for the lesser amount.

The high rate geographic area concept is an effective means of meeting the demonstrated needs of Federal employees who must travel on official business to higher cost areas, and is certainly preferable to increasing the nation-wide per diem rate to a level sufficient to meet these particular circumstances of travel. This method provides for adequate relief in the situations which are now causing most of the hardships experienced by Federal employee travels, while retaining some incentive for employees to maintain their travel expenses at a minimum.

GSA has estimated that under H.R. 2302, the maximum yearly cost impact of a per diem increase to $30 would be approximately $24 million over costs incurred under the present rate of $25. An additional increase of approximately $10 million would occur as a result of the establishment of the major city locality rate method. However, it is almost certain that the major city locality rate method would provide greater flexibility in setting equitable rates and result in lower overall costs to the Government than would result if a higher across-the-board per diem rate was established reflecting the higher costs in certain major cities. A per diem rate justifiable for major cities would be too high for most of the travel performed. Indeed, GSA estimates a uniform increase to a $35 minimum figure would have a maximum cost impact of approximately $47 million over the present $25 and would still be inadequate to cover costs in most major city localities. Therefore, this proposal would result in a lower cost of up to $13 million annually than would an increase to a $35 minimum per diem rate.

The per diem rate for travel to each locality outside the continental United States is to be established by the President, or his designee. In a case where the per diem rate for a particular locality is less than actual and necessary expenses, the President, or his designee, may prescribe reimbursement not to exceed $21 for each day in addition to the locality per diem rate.

Travel allowances

Of equal concern is the recent meteoric rise in the price of transportation costs. In general, the travel reimbursement rates established in 1969 are at substantially inadequate levels.

Two recent Government studies indicate that the present cost of operating a standard size automobile in the United States exceeds the 12 cents maximum reimbursement rate set by statute. A Department of Transportation study completed in April, 1974,¹ indicated that the present cost of operating an automobile was 15.9 cents per mile, while a June, 1974, report by the GSA² indicated that this cost was 14.4 cents per mile. These differences are easily reconcilable since the GSA figure does not include the 2 cents per mile cost for garage, parking, and tolls that the DOT study included. These costs are reimbursed separately under the provisions of the 1969 per diem statutes and, therefore, are appropriately excluded from the reimbursement allowance studies. Both studies included the original vehicle cost depreciation, maintenance, accessories, parts, tires, gas, and oil (excluding taxes), insurance, and State and Federal taxes. The Department of Transportation based its figures on a 5-year depreciated car life, while the GSA used a 10-year period to calculate depreciation expense. The essential point, however, is that both of these studies illustrate the need for an upward adjustment in the present transportation reimbursement rate.

This bill, as amended, would raise the maximum reimbursement rate for operating a private automobile from the current level of 12 cents a mile to 20 cents a mile. In addition, a minimum rate of reimbursement of 15 cents per mile would be established. The actual rate would be established by regulation. Presently, the rate would, in all probability, be raised to 15 cents a mile, but the GSA would have the flexibility to adjust the rates in accordance with the need established by their periodic cost studies, which would be mandatorily required by and reported to Congress at least once a year.

H.R. 2302, as amended, would also correct the presently inadequate reimbursement rates for the use of privately owned motorcycles and airplanes for legitimate government business trips.

This bill would raise the current maximum allowance for motorcycles from 8 cents to 11 cents a mile. This increase is assumed to be adequate to cover any increases in fuel costs for motorcycles since fuel costs are generally minimal with respect to the use of a motorcycle.

In a December 1973 study conducted by the GSA, it was determined that the average cost of operating a privately owned, single-engine piston airplanes was approximately 20.6 cents per mile, exclusive of landing and tie-down fees. The present maximum reimbursement rate of 12 cents a mile is clearly inadequate. Under this bill, the rate would be raised, by regulation, to a minimum of 18 cents and a maximum of 24 cents a mile.

As in the case of the automobile provisions, GSA would be required to conduct periodic cost studies concerning the use of motorcycles and airplanes so that they could base these rates upon justified needs. A report of these results would be required to be made to Congress once a year.

² "Present Cost of Operating Privately-Owned Automobiles," General Services Administration, Federal Supply Service, Transportation Services Division, June 5, 1974.

It should also be noted that presently the per diem statutes do not provide for the separate reimbursement of landing and tie-down fees while operating a privately owned airplane, although similar costs relating to the use of a privately owned automobile, such as parking fees, ferry fares, and highway tolls may be separately allowed. By providing for the separate reimbursement of landing and tie-down fees, this proposal would alleviate this anomolous situation.

By GSA estimates, the annual cost impact for each one cent per mile increase in the reimbursement rate for privately owned vehicles is $3.8 million and for privately owned airplanes is $11,000. If the rates for reimbursement were set at 15 and 21 cents per mile, as they probably would be presently, the estimated annual total cost impact would be $11.5 million more than today's inadequate allowance. In addition, there would be a further increase due to the separate reimbursement for landing and tie-down expenses while operating a private airplane. However, the total added cost due to this provision would be negligible.

Finally, H.R. 2303, as amended, clearly established that the same provisions regarding per diem allowances will be applicable to all persons traveling on official Government business, including employees, experts, and consultants, volunteers and $1-a-year people. This provision would reduce government expenses by utilizing more effective controls upon travel costs while providing for simpler and more uniform accounting procedures.

In conclusion, H.R. 2302, as amended, presents a viable method of dealing with the problem of establishing efficient and effective per diem rates. While the bill deals adequately with covering expenses encountered by employees on legitimate Government business trips, it still retains incentives for keeping those costs at a minimum. It also reserves control over these expenditures in the Congress, yet allows enough flexibility for the GSA to react to price fluctuations in a timely manner.

The committee has long felt that Government employees traveling on official business should be adequately reimbursed for their necessary expenditures and should not pay any of the cost out of their own pockets. Due to recent inflation in the cost of travel, lodging, and meals, increases in the allowances are presently needed. The committee believes that this legislation represents reasonable and adequate means of resolving this problem.

ESTIMATED COST OF LEGISLATION

The General Services Administration estimates that passage of this legislation will result in an increased expenditure of approximately $34 million per year for per diem allowances for each of 5 fiscal years. Expenditures could rise by as much as $57 million per year if the per diem allowances were set at their maximum allowable rate. It is not anticipated that that would be the case at this time.

Expenditures for mileage allowances are expected to increase by approximately $11.5 million per year as a result of the passage of this legislation. Increasing the reimbursement rate to the maximum allowable under this legislation would increase this figure to approximately $23 million per year. It is not, however, anticipated that the rate would be set at the maximum allowable at the present time.

The committee concurs in these estimates.

MATTER REQUIRED TO BE DISCUSSED UNDER HOUSE RULES

In compliance with clauses 2(1)(3) and 2(1)(4) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the following statements are made:

In compliance with subdivision (A) of clause 2(1)(3), the Government Activities Subcommittee of this committee during the 93d Congress reviewed the application and administration of the laws relating to travel expenses of Federal employees and the organization and operation of Federal agencies responsible for the administration and execution thereof, and the committee determined that this law should be revised and improved in the manner set forth in the bill.

With respect to subdivision (C) the committee advises that no estimate or comparison has been prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office relative to any of the provisions of H.R. 2302.

In compliance with clause 2(1)(4) the committee states that the provisions of this legislation in and of themselves are not expected to have an inflationary impact on prices and costs in the operation of the national economy.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS

Section 1 sets forth the title of the bill: "Travel Expenses Amendments Act of 1975."

Section 2 expands the definition of employee to include experts, consultants and volunteers so that all will be treated alike when traveling at government expense.

Section 3 establishes the maximum per diem allowance rates. Subpart 5702(e) sets a $35 per day maximum rate; allows the President or his designee to set the rate for foreign travel; and permits the adoption of regulations for allocating per diem if less than a full day is consumed. Subpart 5702(b) protects an employee who becomes ill while traveling by insuring that he will continue to be entitled to the applicable per diem allowance and travel expenses during the time such illness prevents him from returning to the location of his designated post of duty. Subpart 5702(c) provides for actual and necessary expenses up to $50 per day for travel inside the continental United States under unusual circumstances or for travel to high-cost areas where the basic per diem allowance would be inadequate. Subpart 5702(d) increases the allowance in addition to the regular per diem rate for travel under unusual circumstances outside the continental United States from the present $18 to $21 per day. Subpart 5702(e) is a restatement of a provision of the current statute which exempts justices and judges of the United States from the provisions of this section except to the extent specifically provided in the statute relating to traveling expenses of justices and judges in section 456 of title 28 of the United States Code.

Section 4 deletes the provision of the current statute regarding per diem allowances for experts, consultants, volunteers, and $1-a-year people traveling at Government expense. Under the proposed legislation, these persons would be entitled to per diem under section 5702 in the same manner as other employees of the Federal Government.

Section 5 establishes the mileage allowance for motorcycles at 8 cents per mile; for automobiles at 15 cents per mile; and for airplanes at 18 cents per mile. It also provides for separate reimbursement of airplane landing and tie-down fees.

Section 6 provides that the Administrator of GSA shall prescribe the regulations necessary to carry out the provisions of the per diem and mileage allowance statutes. This function has previously been transferred from the Director of the Bureau of the Budget (now OMB) to the GSA by an Executive order. Section 6 also adds a requirement that the GSA make periodic studies of the costs of travel and of the operation of privately owned vehicles and requires that a report of the results of such studies be made to Congress at least once a year. Within 30 days of such report, the Administrator shall adjust the mileage rates in accordance with the results of the study except that no rate may be adjusted lower than the rates prescribed in section 5 or higher than 11 cents a mile for motorcycles, 20 cents a mile for automobiles, and 24 cents a mile for airplanes.

Section 7 amends the table of contents to conform to a change in the title of section 5707.

Section 8 establishes per diem rates for travel for Senate employees. This provision is identical to one contained in the bill passed by Congress in the 93d Congress and inserted by the Senate. Historically, the Senate has handled its per diem in the same legislation as that covering executive branch employees. The House of Representatives uses the Legislative Appropriations Act instead. The rates provided in this section would be the same as those established for travel by employees of the executive branch.

Section 9, also requested by the Senate and contained in the bill enacted by the last Congress, amends the Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1973 (2 U.S.C. 58) to provide that a Senator's personal staff is to be reimbursed for official travel on the same basis that committee staffs are now reimbursed for official travel. The language allows Senate personal staff to receive per diem expenses for official travel to the home State of the Senator for whom they work. The per diem would be in addition to reimbursement for the transportation expenses already paid by the Senate. No reimbursement is to be made within 120 days of any primary or general election in which the Senator is a candidate. The Senator is personally responsible for certifying claims for reimbursement.

AGENCY COMMENTS

In the 93d Congress, the General Services Administration submitted a letter and draft legislation seeking an increase in the per diem and mileage allowance rates. The draft legislation is similar in concept, but not in language, to that passed by the House last Congress and to H.R. 2302.

GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION,
Washington, D.C., June 5, 1974.

HON. CARL ALBERT,
Speaker of the House of Representatives,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: There is transmitted herewith for referral to the appropriate Committee a draft bill, "To increase the maximum per diem allowance and the maximum statutory mileage allowance for the use of a privately owned automobile or airplane for employees of the Federal Government while traveling on official business, and for other purposes."

Executive Order 11609 of July 22, 1971, vested in the Administrator of General Services the authority of the President to prescribe regulations under 5 U.S.C. 5707 without approval, ratification, or other action by the President. The current Federal Travel Regulations, promulgated by the General Services Administration, are those which become effective on May 1, 1973 (41 CFR 101-7).

Under present law (5 U.S.C. 5702), an employee traveling on official business away from his designated post of duty is entitled to a per diem allowance prescribed by the agency concerned, subject to a maximum of $25 for travel inside the continental United States. Under regulations prescribed under 5 U.S.C. 5707, an agency head may prescribe conditions under which an employee may be reimbursed for the actual and necessary expenses of travel, not to exceed an amount named in the travel authorization, when the maximum per diem allowance would be less than the actual and necessary expenses due to "the unusual circumstances of the travel assignment." In such cases, the amount named in the travel authorization may not exceed $40 for each day in travel status inside the continental United States, or the maximum per diem allowance established for the locality where the travel is performed, plus $18 for each day in a travel status outside the continental United States. The maximum figures of $25, $40, and $18 have been in effect since November 19, 1969, when they were increased to those levels by Public Law 91-114 from the previous figures of $16, $30, and $10.

In view of rising costs associated with travel, especially in major metropolitan areas, the General Services Administration initiated a study to determine the adequacy of present travel allowances for Federal employees. The study involved approximately 13,000 actual employee travel experiences representing 63,000 man-days of travel taken over a period of three months in 1973, and included 22 agencies of the executive branch. This reflects seven-tenths of one percent of the total number of many-days of travel. Results show that the present $25 per diem rate was inadequate for over 50 percent of the reported travel. This was due, primarily, to the increased average costs of approximately 24 percent in food and lodging expenses since 1969, the year of the last per diem increase. The Consumer Price Index level reflects this fact. The study also disclosed that actual subsistence expense allowances of up to $40 per day were authorized in only three percent of the travel reported.

We, therefore, propose in our draft bill that the maximum statutory per diem allowance be increased from $25 to $30; the maximum statutory actual subsistence expenses in the continental United States be increased from $40 to $50 per day; and the permissible amount in addition to the maximum per diem allowance established for the locality for travel outside the continental United States be increased from $18 to $23 per day. Section 2 of our draft bill would provide the same changes in the $25 and $40 limitations imposed upon the Senate by the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1957, as amended. In spite of these increases, the allowances will not be sufficient to take care of those employees traveling to major cities such as New and San Francisco. Based on published commercial lodging and meal expenses, it would require an average of $45 per day for adequate lodgings with three average meals, including tips and taxes. For that reason, it is proposed in our draft bill to permit the reimbursement of actual and necessary expenses of a trip when they are much more than the maximum per diem allowance, due to a travel assignment to such major cities and metropolitan areas. Under present law this reimbursement is permitted only when the higher expenses are due to "unusual circumstances."

Based on a $30 statutory per diem rate, it is anticipated that there would be approximately 10 major city areas at the present time where travel expenses would exceed the maximum per diem rate by 10 percent or more and would therefore be designated as a "major city locality." A maximum rate would be stated in the governing regulations for each major city area so designated, but in no case will the rate established exceed the $50 statutory maximum actual expenses allowance. It is further anticipated that the maximum locality rates would be reviewed at least annually and adjusted, as appropriate, within the proposed ceiling of $50 per day. These major city locality rates would be prescribed as maximums only, and when actual subsistence expenses incurred in any one day are less than the maximum authorized, the traveler will, of course, be reimbursed only for the lesser amount.

We believe this major city locality rate method to be a means of meeting the demonstrated needs of Federal employees who must travel on official business, which is preferable to increasing the maximum per diem rate to a level sufficient to meet these particular circumstances of travel. It will relieve the situations which are now causing most of the hardships experienced by Federal employee travelers, while the proposed increase in the maximum per diem rate will adequately cover the remainder.

Under our proposed draft bill, the maximum yearly cost impact based on a per diem increase to $30 would be approximately $24 million over the present rate ($25), plus an additional increase of approximately $10 million based on the establishment of the major city locality rate method.

This bill also proposes to amend 5 U.S.C. 5704(a)(2), to increase the maximum allowance for the use of a privately owned automobile from 12 cents to 18 cents a mile, and for the use of a privately owned airplane from 12 cents to 24 cents a mile, and to amend 5 U.S.C. 5704(b) to provide, in addition to the mileage allowance prescribed under 5 U.S.C. 5704(a) (2), that employees who use a privately owned airplane for official business may be reimbursed for landing and tiedown fees.

The maximum figures of 12 cents for a privately owned automobile and airplane have been in effect since August 14, 1961, when they were increased to those levels by Public Law 87-139 from the previous figure of 10 cents.

A recent study by GSA of automobile operating costs indicates that the cost of operating a privately owned automobile as of April 1974 was 14.4 cents a mile.

Another study which we recently completed relates to costs associated with operating a privately owned airplane. As determined in this study, the cost of operating a privately owned, single engine, piston airplane, as of December 1973, was approximately 20.6 cents per mile, exclusive of landing and tiedown fees.

Although our studies indicated operating costs of 14.4 cents per mile for privately owned automobiles and 20.6 cents per mile for privately owned airplanes, we recommend that the statutory rates be set at 18 and 24 cents per mile, respectively. This would allow us latitude in prescribing reimbursement rates within the statutory maximums that will equate to the current costs of operating these conveyances.

Additionally, we recommend that 5 U.S.C. 5704(b) be amended to permit reimbursement for landing and tiedown fees in addition to the mileage allowance prescribed for privately owned airplanes. Although similar costs such as parking fees, ferry fares, and highway tolls may be separately allowed under 5 U.S.C. 5704(b) for the use of a privately owned automobile, there is no statutory authority for separately allowing the expenses of landing or tiedown services when a privately owned aircraft is authorized for use on official business. A change in the law to allow separate reimbursement for these costs will insure a closer relationship between expenses incurred and the amount of reimbursement and will standardize the allowances as they relate to both automobiles and airplanes.

The estimated annual costs impact for each 1 cent per mile increase for privately owned vehicles is $3.8 million and for privately owned airplanes is $11,000. If the rates for reimbursement are set at 15 and 21 cents, the estimated annual total cost impact would be $11.5 million more than today's inadequate allowance.

The draft bill will provide more equitable treatment for Federal employee travelers and alleviate the inadequacies of present travel allowances. We urge its prompt enactment.

The Office of Management and Budget has advised that there is no objection to the submission of this draft bill to the Congress and that its enactment would be consistent with the Administration's objectives.

Sincerely,

DWIGHT A. INK,
Deputy Administrator.

instead of actual expenses of transportation when that mode of transportation is authorized or approved as more advantageous to the Government. A determination of such advantage is not required when payment on a mileage basis is limited to the cost of travel by common carrier including per diem. Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this subsection, in any case in which an employee who is engaged on official business for the Government chooses to use a privately owned vehicle when a Government vehicle is readily available, payment on a mileage basis is limited to the cost of travel by such Government vehicle.

A sum advanced and not used for allowable travel expenses is recoverable from the employee [or individual] or his estate by—

- (1) setoff against accrued pay, retirement credit, or other amount due the employee [or individual];*
- (2) deduction from an amount due from the United States; and*
- (3) such other method as is provided by law.*

* * * * *

§ 5707. Regulations

[The Director of the Bureau of the Budget shall prescribe regulations necessary for the administration of this subchapter. The fixing, payment, advancement, and recovery of travel allowances, and the reimbursement of travel expenses, under this subchapter shall be in accordance with the regulations. This section does not apply to the fixing or payment of a per diem allowance under section 5703(c) of this title.]

§ 5707. Regulations and reports

(a) The Administrator of General Services shall prescribe regulations necessary for the administration of this subchapter, except that the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts shall prescribe such regulations with respect to official travel by employees of the judicial branch of the Government. Such regulations shall state the specific rate of the per diem allowance, within the dollar limitations prescribed in the first sentence of section 5702(a) of this title, and a specific rate of reimbursement for actual and necessary expenses of official travel to each high rate geographical area under section 5702(c)(1) of this title, to which an employee is entitled.

(b) (1) The Administrator of General Services, in consultation with the Comptroller General of the United States, the Secretary of Transportation, the Secretary of Defense, and representatives of organizations of employees of the Government, shall conduct periodic investigations of the cost of travel and the operation of privately owned vehicles to employees while engaged on official business, and shall report the results of such investigations to Congress at least once a year. In conducting the investigations, the Administrator shall review and analyze among other factors—

- (A) depreciation of original vehicle cost;
- (B) gasoline and oil (excluding taxes);
- (C) maintenance, accessories, parts, and tires;
- (D) insurance; and
- (E) State and Federal taxes.

(2) At least once each year, the Administrator shall determine, based upon the results of his investigation, specific figures each rounded to the nearest one-half cent, of the average, actual cost a mile during the period for the use of a privately owned motorcycle, automobile, and airplane. The Administrator shall report such figures to Congress not later than five working days after he makes his determination. Each such report shall be printed in the Federal Register. The cent figures contained in paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of section 5704(a) of this section, or any adjustments previously made thereto and in effect under that section, shall be adjusted by the Administrator within thirty days following the submission of that report to the figures so determined and reported by him. Those figures shall not be less than the figures in effect under that section immediately after the enactment of the Travel Expense Amendments Act of 1975, nor shall those figures ever be adjusted to figures greater than—

- (A) 11 cents a mile for the use of a privately owned motorcycle;
- (B) 20 cents a mile for the use of a privately owned automobile;

and

- (C) 24 cents a mile for the use of a privately owned airplane.

Those adjusted figures shall also be included in the regulations prescribed under this section.
